Notification Concerning Completion of Bitcoin Purchase

KLab Inc. (the “Company”) has announced that it has purchased bitcoin today as part of its management strategy as follows.

Notes

1. Reason for purchase

In recent years, crypto assets, especially bitcoin, have been regarded as a stable and diversified investment target, known as "digital gold" and a key asset in the market. The Company has also decided to hold a portion of its funds that it does not plan to use in the short term as crypto assets as a means of long-term asset preservation.

In addition, through holding these assets, the Company will deepen its understanding of crypto assets and blockchain technology and consider utilizing them in its business in the future.

Crypto asset investments inherently involve risks such as price fluctuation risks, liquidity risks, risks in changes to laws and regulations and tax systems, and cybersecurity risks. The Company has established an appropriate management and monitoring system for these risks and will flexibly review its holding policies and sales strategies as necessary to preserve assets and optimize profit opportunities.

2. Result of purchase

(1) Purchase amount	20 million yen
(2) Purchase quantity	1.19828 BTC
(3) Purchase unit price	16,690,535 yen

3. Future outlook

The crypto assets held by the Company will be assessed at market value on a quarterly basis, and the resulting gains and losses will be recorded on its income statement. If this has a significant impact on its consolidated financial results, it will be promptly disclosed.

Although future purchases have not yet been decided, the Company will promptly announce any matters that need to be disclosed.
