[Principle 3-1. Full Disclosure (iii)]

1. Policies for determining remuneration

The remuneration of the Company’s directors consists of “basic remuneration,” which is fixed remuneration, “bonuses” that fluctuate according to the level of performance achieved in each financial period and “stock options.”

As for basic remuneration, the amount to be paid to individual directors is determined based on the Company’s predetermined remuneration standard amounts according to their job positions and responsibilities, within the range of the total amount set by resolution of a general meeting of shareholders.

Bonuses are treated as a short-term incentive and linked to the profit attributable to owners of parent (hereinafter referred to as “profit”) achieved in each financial period, which is important as a management indicator and serves as a dividend resource, valuing the perspective of shareholders. Specifically, the total amount of bonuses to be paid to the Company’s directors is determined by taking the number of eligible directors and the growth rate of dividends into account, with the upper limit set at the amount obtained by multiplying the profit for each fiscal year by one-fiftieth (1/50) of the dividend payout ratio (%). Allocations of bonuses to individual directors are determined, upon collecting opinions from outside directors at a board of directors meeting, according to their job positions and responsibilities, subject to an increase or decrease by a certain percentage depending on their achievements.

As for stock options, the total number of share reservation rights to offer as stock options at the time of their issuance has been approved by a general meeting of shareholders, and the numbers to grant and the terms and conditions for exercising stock options for individual directors are stipulated in a resolution of the board of directors and individual contracts

2. Procedures for determining remuneration

Basic remuneration and bonuses shall be approved by the board of directors after the Human Resources department determines how to allocate the total remuneration within the upper limit set by resolution of a general meeting of shareholders.

As for stock options, a general meeting of shareholders approves the total number of share reservation rights to offer as stock options at the time of their issuance, and the board of directors decides the numbers to grant and terms and conditions for exercising stock options for each case.

We will examine the possibility of setting up a system to collect opinions from independent outside directors upon making decisions on remuneration in order to build a more effective governance structure.

[Principle 3-1. Full Disclosure (iv)]

1. Policies for selecting candidate officers

In nominating director candidates, the Company respects the policy of nominating candidates who can fulfill the duties and responsibilities of a director and satisfy the management role as a director entrusted to them by shareholders, and who have rich experience and deep insights in management.

As for nominating candidates for audit and supervisory board members, the Company follows the principle of nominating a person as a candidate after comprehensively considering their qualities such as their expertise in finance and accounting, and diverse knowledge of corporate management, together with a high level of independence.

2. Procedures for selecting candidate officers

Directors are appointed at the board meeting based upon the draft of candidates prepared and submitted by the representative director.

Audit and supervisory board members are appointed at the board meeting after the audit & supervisory board consents to the candidates proposed to it by the representative director.

We will examine the possibility of setting up a system to collect opinions from independent outside directors when nominating candidates for directors and audit and supervisory board members, and electing senior management executives in order to build a more effective governance structure.

3. Policies and procedures in the dismissal of officers

As for the dismissal of officers, the Company shall adopt a resolution at the board of directors meeting regarding submission of a proposal on dismissal of an officer to the general meeting of shareholders when it is determined that such officer is deemed no longer to possess the qualification set forth in 1. Above, or when such officer has neglected his/her duties, causing a significant impairment of corporate value, or when such officer has violated relevant laws and regulations and the Articles of Incorporation, or when it has become difficult for such officer to continue to perform his/her duties for health reasons.

[Supplemental Principle 3-1-1. Full Disclosure]

Some parts of the descriptions in the preceding items under [Principle 3-1] lack specific details as the Company has not implemented them all yet with some being under discussion. However, we shall work towards adding more value to the descriptions for the viewers by seeking to comply with these items, including information disclosure in compliance with relevant laws and regulations.

[Supplemental Principle 4-2-1. Roles and Responsibilities of the Board of Directors (2)]

The remuneration of the Company's directors consists of "basic remuneration," which is fixed remuneration, "bonuses" that fluctuate according to the level of performance achieved in each financial period and "stock options."

There is currently no remuneration that is linked to medium- to long-term performance, such as an employee stock ownership plan. However, we will consider introducing new medium- to long-term incentive plans etc. to support the sustainable growth of the Company, examining the structure of the overall remuneration and its proportions at the same time through objective and transparent procedures.

[Supplemental Principle 4-3-1. Roles and Responsibilities of the Board of Directors (3)]

Please refer to the description of [Principle 3-1] and [Supplemental Principle 4-10-1] for details.

[Supplemental Principle 4-3-3. Roles and Responsibilities of the Board of Directors (3)]

When it is objectively determined that the CEO should be dismissed due to impairment of the Company's corporate value as a result of violation of relevant laws and regulations and the Articles of Incorporation, the Company will adopt a resolution on dismissal of the CEO at the board of directors meeting in which independent outside directors constitute more than one-third of the members, upon deliberation based on appropriate advice from independent outside directors. The Company will examine and establish objective, timely and transparent procedures for the dismissal of the CEO.

[Supplemental Principle 4-8-2. Effectiveness of Independent Outside Directors]

While the Company does not elect a head of independent outside directors, three independent outside directors join in the discussion at the board meetings and make meaningful suggestions where appropriate. There are also some opportunities for the independent outside directors to have communication with the management and audit & supervisory board members as necessary to foster cooperation among them.

The Company intends to consider electing the head of independent outside directors.

[Supplemental Principle 4-10-1. Use of Optional Approach]

The Company has the structure of an organization with an audit & supervisory board, which currently has three outside directors who are registered as independent officers with the Tokyo Stock Exchange.

The Company has no particular system set up at present to seek appropriate suggestions from outside directors on matters that are deemed important such as nominating directors and making decisions on remuneration. However, it will examine the possibility of having a system to collect opinions from independent outside directors when deciding on personnel matters or remuneration, in order to build a more effective governance structure.

[Disclosure Based on the Principles of the Corporate Governance Code]

[Principle 1-4. Cross-Shareholdings]

1. Policies regarding cross-shareholdings

The number of shares of other companies that the Company holds shall be kept to the minimum necessary, and the Board of Directors shall annually assess whether or not to hold individual cross-shareholdings, closely examining whether the benefits and risks from each holding cover the Company's cost of capital. Any cross-held shares, except for those that are deemed rational to continue to be held as a result of such assessment, will be sold.

2. Policies regarding the exercise of voting rights associated with cross-held shares

The Company will vote for an agenda that it considers will contribute to increasing the value of shares it holds, whereas it will vote against if it believes that such agenda may damage the value of shares, after examining the business policies and strategies of the companies invested in.

[Principle 1-7. Related Party Transactions]

The Company stipulates in the regulations of the board of directors that any transaction between the Company and any of its officers or major shareholders (who hold 10% or more of the total voting rights in their own name or another person's name) shall individually be reported to and obtain prior approval from the board of directors. Upon the execution of such a transaction that has been approved by the board of directors, the results shall be reported to the board of directors, setting up a system that enables monitoring to ensure that such transactions cause no damage to the Company's interests and its shareholders' common interests.

Additionally, the performance of such transactions is disclosed in a timely and appropriate manner according to the related laws and regulations.

[Principle 2-6. Roles of Corporate Pension Funds as Asset Owners]

Corporate pension funds are managed by Corporate Pension fund of Amada in the Company. Decision-making on asset management for the pension fund, such as selection of asset managers and investment funds, is carried out by Board of Delegates based upon consultation with the Asset Management Committee, consisting of the Company's officers in charge of finance and corporate planning, etc. All the asset managers of the pension fund have accepted the Stewardship Code, and hold an investment management briefing on a quarterly basis and conduct qualitative and quantitative evaluation on investment. The pension fund has qualified personnel assigned to the secretariat and works to enhance their qualifications by sending them to external seminars, etc. In order to further improve its human resource and investment management capabilities, the pension fund will appoint an external advisor. The pension fund implements thorough compliance training and enforces a management structure that avoids a conflict of interest between the Company and beneficiaries.

[Supplemental Principle 4-11-1. Preconditions for Effectiveness of Board of Directors/Audit & Supervisory Board]

The board of directors will strive for proper, swift and fair decision-making and supervision of businesses to achieve sustainable growth and improve medium- to long-term corporate value.

It has also set itself a target as a basic policy that the board of directors consists of internal directors who hold professional expertise and knowledge that they can leverage for business management, research and development, production, sales and services from a global perspective as a board as a whole regardless of gender or nationality, and more than one outside director who can provide opinions and raise questions from a professional and independent standpoint, in order for the board to perform appropriate and flexible decision-making on the Company's business activities and supervision of its execution.

The board of directors limits the number of directors to 10 in the Articles of Incorporation, which is currently comprised of 8 directors including 3 outside directors who are both independent officers.

The Company will consider appointing officers based upon not only their knowledge, experience and expertise but also on the recognition that diverse views can contribute to business progress, global expansion and proper supervision and monitoring.

Please refer to the description in [Principle 3-1 (iv)] in the preceding paragraph of [Reasons for Non-compliance with the Principles of the Corporate Governance Code] for the policies and procedures for electing the board members.

[Supplemental Principle 4-11-2. Preconditions for Effectiveness of Board of Directors/Audit & Supervisory Board]

If the Company's directors and audit & supervisory board members concurrently hold positions at other listed companies, they shall seek to keep their duties associated with such positions within a reasonable limit so that such duties do not hinder them in fulfilling their responsibilities at the Company.

The Company discloses any important concurring positions including those of each director and audit & supervisory board member at other listed companies in a business report and a notice of convocation of the general meeting of shareholders.

[Supplemental Principle 4-11-3. Preconditions for Effectiveness of Board of Directors/Audit & Supervisory Board]

The Company evaluated the effectiveness of the board of directors as a whole for fiscal 2018 pursuant to the Corporate Governance Guidelines. An outline of the results is as follows.

1. Evaluation method

We distributed a survey regarding the effectiveness of the board of directors to all directors including outside directors and received responses from everyone. The board of directors' secretariat collected the responses and analyzed the details.

Considering the opinions of outside directors and outside audit & supervisory board members that were based on the results of analysis, the Company analyzed and evaluated the effectiveness of the board of directors as a whole at the board of directors meeting held on August 9, 2019 and discussed the current issues and future action policies.

Key questions in the survey

- (1) Composition of the board of directors
- (2) Roles and duties of the board of directors
- (3) Management of the board of directors
- (4) Effectiveness of the board of directors

2. Outline of evaluation results

As a result of the evaluation, the Company confirmed that its board of directors was generally functioning appropriately. An outline of the results is as follows.

(1) The Company's board of directors is properly constituted in terms of size, diversity of members, and independence of independent outside directors, while a framework is in place to make important management decisions and oversee the execution of businesses appropriately.

(2) An environment is secured for members to express their views freely and openly. Holding regularly-scheduled briefing sessions for outside officers prior to the board of directors meeting and enhanced provision of preliminary information required for deliberation, through means such as holding a briefing session on our business, are contributing to active discussions.

On the other hand, further discussion needs to occur regarding the corporate vision from the medium- and long-term perspective and issues to be addressed in the future. It is also desirable to review compensation systems, as well as continually examine the establishment of a voluntary advisory committee, etc., regarding issues such as the executive remuneration and evaluation system, appointment and dismissal, and the development of next-generation executives based on a succession plan.

3. Future action policies for enhancing effectiveness

Based on the results of the evaluation, the Company's board of directors will consider developing a framework for strengthening its supervisory function. In addition, efforts will be made to enhance discussions in a way that helps to improve the Company's medium- and long-term corporate value such as ESG and risk management-related measures, the executive remuneration and evaluation system, and the development of a succession plan.

[Supplemental Principle 4-14-2. Training for Directors and Audit & Supervisory Board Members]

The Company will provide directors, including outside officers, and audit and supervisory board members with opportunities to visit the main locations of the Company such as business places and factories. The Company will also hold briefing sessions and workshops as training for directors and audit & supervisory board members, to help them acquire an understanding of the Company.

The Company will also utilize external informative training opportunities for the directors and audit & supervisory board members to gain the necessary basic knowledge to perform their duties. It will help them to deepen their understanding of their roles and duties as directors or audit & supervisory board members by bearing any cost incurred in association with such opportunities.

[Principle 5-1. Policy for Constructive Dialogue with Shareholders]

The Company will actively enter into constructive dialogue with shareholders and investors with the aim of sustaining growth and boosting medium- to long-term corporate value. It will strive to further create value by reflecting their opinions and issues presented at such dialogue on the operations to improve our business. We also provide quarterly results briefings and individual interviews and answer the enquiries from individual investors as required in order for them to deepen their understanding of business conditions, details of the business and strategies of the Company. Upon receiving a request for information disclosure, the Company shall try to do so in a timely, equitable and active manner conforming to the “Disclosure Policy.”

Policies regarding the system and initiative to promote active dialogue with shareholders are as below:

1. The president oversees the overall dialogue with shareholders and investors and closely watches in order to achieve constructive dialogue, whereas the IR section that directly reports to the president provides shareholders and investors with responses to ensure constructive dialogue through various initiatives including the shareholders’ meetings.
2. Opinions and issues etc. presented at the dialogue with shareholders and investors are given to the management as feedback after being aggregated as appropriate to communicate and share the information so that it can be used for managing and improving our business.
3. The IR section works to cooperate with other related departments including corporate planning, finance and public relations as well as other companies within the group to smoothly and reasonably press forward with the dialogue with shareholders and investors.
4. The Company will strive to enhance information disclosure by holding briefing sessions when it releases quarterly results and medium-term management plans, making explanatory material available on its website, sending out a shareholder newsletter and offering tours of the facilities such as factories and exhibition halls.
5. The Company sets a silent period between 10 days prior to the end of accounting period and the day when the results are announced. During this period, its employees must refrain from making any comments on results or accept individual interviews for the purpose of preventing leakage of information relating to the results. There are also internal rules and bylaws for officers on management of insider information created to handle such information.

Policy on Determining Remuneration Amounts and Calculation Methods	Established

Disclosure of Policy on Determining Remuneration Amounts and Calculation Methods

The remuneration of the Company's directors consists of "basic remuneration," which is fixed remuneration, "bonuses" that fluctuate according to the level of consolidated performance achieved in each financial period and "stock options" that is linked to the medium- to long-term corporate value.

As for basic remuneration, the amount to be paid to individual directors is determined based on the predetermined remuneration standard amounts according to their job positions and responsibilities, within the range of the total amount set by resolution of a general meeting of shareholders.

Bonuses are treated as a short-term incentive and linked to the profit achieved in each fiscal period, which is important as a management indicator and serves as a dividend resource, valuing the perspective of shareholders. Specifically, the total amount of bonuses to be paid to the Company's directors is determined by taking the number of eligible directors and the growth rate of dividends into account, with the upper limit set at the amount obtained by multiplying the profit for each fiscal year by one-fiftieth (1/50) of the dividend payout ratio (%). Allocations of bonuses to individual directors are determined, upon collecting opinions from outside directors at a board of directors meeting, according to their job positions and responsibilities, subject to an increase or decrease by a certain percentage depending on their achievements. For Outside Directors, who are independent from the execution of business, only basic remuneration is paid and no bonuses are provided.

The maximum amount of Directors' remuneration was resolved to be 468 million yen per year (the maximum 50 million yen for Outside Directors) including bonuses, at the 81st Ordinary General Meeting of Shareholders held on June 26, 2019, and the Directors' remuneration shall be paid within such amount. For Outside Directors, who are independent from the execution of business, only basic remuneration is paid and no bonuses are provided.

As for stock options, the 72nd Ordinary General Meeting of Shareholders held on June 29, 2010 decided on giving up to 500 share reservation rights to the then eight directors, and the number of rights for each director and the terms and conditions of exercise are stipulated in a resolution of the board of directors and individual contracts.

For audit & supervisory board members, only basic remuneration is paid. The amount was set at 4 million yen or less monthly by resolutions of the 48th ordinary general meeting of shareholders held on June 27, 1986, and the monthly remuneration for each audit & supervisory board member is paid within such amount after being discussed among audit & supervisory board members.

[Supporting System for Outside Directors and/or Audit & Supervisory Board Members]

There is currently neither a section nor personnel who are designated to support outside directors and audit & supervisory board members, but information is conveyed by full-time directors, audit & supervisory board members and employees as necessary.

Suzuki and Yuichiro Koga, both of whom work for the company mentioned above. They expressed their opinions on the Company's financial statements etc. as independent outside audit and supervisory board members of a team they formed with 11 certified public accountants, who supported auditing, and other professional staff.

Implementation of Environmental Activities, CSR Activities etc.	Under the Amada Group Environmental Declaration, the Company aims to have management that ensures societal and corporate sustainability by further promoting active environmental activities. The details are published on the below website: https://www.amadaholdings.co.jp/activity/ (Japanese) https://www.amadaholdings.co.jp/en/activity/ (English)
Other	Out of eight directors of the Company, there are currently no female directors. The Company's group is engaged in building an environment that women feel happy to work in, aiming to achieve "a workplace where women can play an active role." In particular, we have set up some systems to foster women's motivation to work, such as one that allows female workers to reactivate their unused paid annual leave to take paid parental leave, and another that encourages male employees to take a certain period of leave to support their spouses who are on parental leave, or leave for parents' day to promote participation in the events held at schools where employees' children attend. We will work toward being certified as a company supporting child-care by the Ministry of Health, Labour and Welfare, by allowing employees to change their employment status temporarily to the "job-based" employment and introducing a system to support long-term career development and a system relating to parental leave that is more generous than current laws and regulations require. Through such effort, we intend to raise the proportion of female managers, thus fostering female candidates for corporate officers within the whole group. While the proportion of female employees in the company and in the consolidated subsidiaries in the country is 8.5% and that of female managers is 0.7% as of March 31, 2019, they account for 25.3% of all college graduate employees hired last year, and thanks to the above systems, we expect that the proportion of female managers will steadily rise.
