Questions and Answers for the Presentation of Financial Results for the Six Months Ended September 30, 2025

This Q&A compilation is a summary of the main questions we received at our financial results briefing for the six months ended September 30, 2025, held on December 2, 2025. Some revisions and modifications have been for facilitating readers' understanding.

Q1 We expect liquid cooling to become more prevalent in AI data centers going forward. Do you see any demand or inquiries for couplings related to this trend?

A1 Demand from data centers is very strong, driven by the rapid growth of generative AI. Our couplings are already being adopted for cooling applications in data centers. Our COMPACT ZEROSPILL CUPLA are used for substrate cooling, and we are expanding variations in mounting configurations to meet growing demand. In addition to couplings, our sliding door closers have also been widely adopted overseas, and we are actively working to further expand sales in this area.

Q2 Are the performance targets for the final year of the Medium-Term Management Plan 2026 challenging, or do you consider them achievable with the start-up of the new plant?

A2 This fiscal year marks the halfway point of our Medium-Term Management Plan 2026, with the revenue target revised downward to 27.3 billion yen and operating profit raised to 1.5 billion yen. The targets for the final year of the plan are quite ambitious, and we continue to discuss the feasibility of achieving them at the Board of Directors and other relevant meetings. We will announce specific measures as soon as we are ready to disclose them.
