Notice Regarding Equipment Restoration at the Company's Ashikaga Plant

Oiles Corporation (the "Company") hereby announces that the performance-testing equipment for seismic isolators at its Ashikaga Plant, which has been out of operation due to a malfunction since October 1, 2025, has now been restored. Accordingly, the Company has resumed shipments of products that have undergone performance testing with this equipment.

The Company sincerely apologizes for the significant inconvenience and concern caused to customers, shareholders, investors, and all other stakeholders during the suspension period. Going forward, the Company will further strengthen its maintenance and management systems for the equipment and strive to ensure the reliability and safety of its testing operations to prevent recurrence.

As for the impact on the Company's consolidated full-year financial results for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2026, it remains as announced in the "Notice Regarding the Impact of Equipment Malfunction at the Company's Ashikaga Plant and Revision of Full-Year Earnings Forecast" released on November 7, 2025. Should further disclosure be required, the Company will promptly make an announcement.
