Advantages of the Taiwan renewable energy business

- Per capita electricity use in Taiwan is higher than in Japan
- The government-owned Taiwan Power Company handles generation, distribution and sales of electricity
- Solar power was 4.15GW as of 2019; a mega-solar market is now emerging due to government policies for speeding up installations of renewable energy facilities
- The FIT purchase period is 20 years, the same as in Japan; the purchase price of solar power is determined when each project is completed

Future Plans Related to the Introduction of Solar Power Generation Facilities in Taiwan

*Figures for 2025, 2030, and 2050 are targets.

Potential of green ammonia

- There are growing expectations for ammonia as a fuel for thermal power plants, industrial furnaces, and ships.
- Ammonia is synthesized by combining hydrogen produced by water splitting, and atmospheric nitrogen. Since fossil fuel is not used in the manufacturing process, CO2 is not generated.
- In January 2024, the Japanese government announced a plan to support domestic procurement of hydrogen and ammonia with an eye to achieve carbon neutrality by 2050.

(History of Equity Capital (ROE and Total Return Ratio))

- ROE for FY2025 increased to 9.5% due to record-high profit. While a level of 10%-15% is targeted, a decline is expected in FY2026 due to projected lower earnings.
- The total return ratio has generally been in the range of approximately 40%–50% in recent years (excluding FY2025), supported by dividend payments and share repurchases. 2.3 Dividends

- In accordance with the dividend policy, for FY2026, a dividend of ¥22 per share is planned, with a projected payout ratio of 37.6% of the five-year average of net income.

Dividend policy

- Dividends are the primary way to distribute earnings to shareholders and the priority is dividend stability.
- The current payout ratio guideline is about 30%. As performance fees and other one-time revenue has a big effect on earnings, the guideline is to use average net income for five years as the basis. Using this average reduces the effects of earnings swings from year to year and increases the stability of dividends.
- The goal is to raise the dividend along with growth of the five-year average of net income.
