2. Reason for the Revision of Dividend Forecast

The Company was founded in 1981 as a specialized distributor for cardiac pacemakers, and in 2001, it established its manufacturing capabilities with its first proprietary product, the PTCA guidewire. Since then, the Company has expanded its business operations, leveraging its dual role as both manufacturer and distributor to build a flexible and robust product portfolio. As a result, in the fiscal year ended March 31, 2026, the proprietary sales mix reached 56%. Moving forward, the importance of the manufacturing function will continue to increase as the Company aims to accelerate growth through its evolution into a "Global MedTech Company".

To express its profound gratitude to its shareholders for their continuous support over the years as it reaches the significant milestone of its 25th anniversary as a medical device manufacturer, the Company has decided to distribute an interim commemorative dividend of 25.00 yen per share, with a record date of September 30, 2026.
