2. Reasons for Revision to the Financial Results Forecast

The Company revised upward the figures for net sales and each type of profit in the consolidated financial results forecast for the six months ending September 30, 2026, for the following reasons: in the passenger automobile business, passenger demands are trending above expected levels; and in the automobile sales business, sales of high-end new vehicles such as heavy-duty trucks, and revenue from vehicle maintenance, are showing strength.

The full-year consolidated financial results forecast remains unchanged from that announced on April 28, 2026 as it is necessary to closely monitor passenger demand trends and evaluate the impact of the recent development in the Middle East. Should it become necessary to revise the financial results forecast in light of future business performance trends, the Company will promptly disclose such revisions.
