Notice Regarding Acquisition of Shares in Fortuna Komers d.o.o by Our Consolidated Subsidiary (Conversion into a Second-tier Subsidiary)

Antalis S.A.S. (headquartered in Paris, France; hereinafter “Antalis”), a consolidated subsidiary of our company, has acquired all shares of Fortuna Komers d.o.o. (headquartered in Split, Croatia; hereinafter “Fortuna”), a company engaged in the visual communication business including the sale of digital printing-related products, and has converted it into a subsidiary.

Please note that the completion of this share acquisition is subject to obtaining approval from the relevant Hungarian authorities under the Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) regulations.

1 . Purpose of Share Acquisition

Fortuna operates in six Eastern European countries—Croatia, Serbia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Slovenia, Austria, and Hungary—engaged in the sales of digital printing-related products such as large-format inkjet printer hardware, inks, and media including films and roll paper. The company also provides hardware maintenance and offers tailored solutions to meet customer needs. In particular, Fortuna has established a leading position in the digital printing market in Croatia, Serbia, and Bosnia and Herzegovina. The company is distinguished by its high level of expertise in digital printing and its extensive product lineup. It has also built strong partnerships with major digital printing equipment manufacturers, including exclusive distribution rights for certain brands.

The acquisition of Fortuna marks our Group's first entry into the Balkan region and the establishment of a local presence, representing a meaningful development for the Group. Through this acquisition, we expect to further strengthen Antalis' presence in the visual communication business in both the Balkans and Eastern Europe, solidify our hardware portfolio, and enhance relationships with strategic suppliers. These factors have led to our decision to acquire shares in Fortuna.
